

A DJ is performing at a live event. The background is a vibrant red wall with the words "Clare Collar" written in a large, white, cursive font. The DJ is wearing a black t-shirt and is focused on his equipment. There are several stage lights and microphones visible, creating a professional and energetic atmosphere. The overall scene is lit with a mix of red and blue light.

ABOUT CLARE SOUND

We're Clare Sound, the leading student run technical production society at the University of Cambridge based in Clare College. We provide and operate a wide range of professional AV and lighting equipment to support events taking place in Clare and around the University.

We primarily support live events taking place in Clare Cellars, the atmospheric college bar in the crypt under Clare's historic chapel. Our team of technicians, and stage crew are on hand to take all the stress out of event tech by acting as a production partner for conferences, weddings, and any other public or private event. Just give us your requirements and we'll do the rest: providing our state of the art equipment, a team of trained technicians, and in-depth planning support, all at highly competitive rates.

As a student society, our members are all volunteers who are passionate about what we do and prepared to go above and beyond to provide an exceptional and seamless service. The funds we raise from hire fees are invested back into the society to cover running costs and equipment purchases.

Alongside our own substantial equipment stock, we maintain active relationships with a number of local technical partners. As such, we're able to source even the most obscure bit of professional equipment at a significant discount.

We look forward to working with you to make your event look and sound spectacular, whilst giving you a stress-free experience so you can enjoy the experience.
